

Electronic Resources Librarian
Healey Library
University of Massachusetts Boston

Reporting to the Head of Library Systems and Discovery Services (LSDS), the Electronic Resource Librarian is responsible for the end-to-end management of electronic resources and best practices. The incumbent manages the access to electronic resources, including databases, e-journals, e-books, and streaming media; establishes and optimizes workflows to enable efficient e-resource management and ensures the quality of the metadata and reliable discovery of and access to the library's electronic resources via discovery tools and resource management systems; and serves as the library's primary contact with third-party e-resource vendors and publishers and library personnel regarding discovery and delivery issues for electronic resources.

The Library Systems and Discovery Services Department is responsible for library core system infrastructure and the discovery services that support research, scholarship, teaching, and learning at UMass Boston. The Library has recently migrated from Ex Libris Voyager ILS to its ALMA resource management system and PRIMO discovery platform. This position works collaboratively with staff within the department, as well as with other departments in the Library and across campus, to maintain and enhance access and discoverability of the Library's diverse range of electronic resources.
